

ReadyGlobal™ Delivers “Significant Business Disruption” Table-top Exercise to Global Investment Firm

Objective

Deliver a comprehensive, in-person table-top exercise designed to validate plans and procedures, operational coordination, cyberattack protections, continuity facility readiness, and crisis communications in response to a significant business disruption.

Situation

A global investment firm specializing in early and late stage ventures and managing over $50 billion USD capital recognized the operational and financial loss prevention benefits associated with maintaining Business Continuity and Incident Response plans. Company leadership understood the risk of operating with untested and potentially incomplete plans, particularly with regard to cyber threats. The company engaged with ReadyGlobal™ to develop an in-person table-top exercise to validate the effectiveness of those plans and to identify gaps requiring corrective action. The exercise resulted in several “Strengths” and “Areas for Improvement,” each with subordinate observations and recommendations for the company’s consideration.

Solution

ReadyGlobal’s exercise experts reviewed the company’s policies and plans against high probability, high consequence threats that could adversely affect their business. ReadyGlobal™ conferred with the client’s Project Team, assessed potential impacts to critical functions, and produced a scenario involving a ransomware attack followed by a regional power loss and civil unrest. ReadyGlobal™ developed, delivered, and evaluated the 2-hour table-top exercise at the company’s US headquarters, and provided the company’s executive team with after action recommendations shortly thereafter.
