Situation

A global firm offering currency trading services for retail and corporate clients required outside expertise to construct a Business Continuity Management System for its corporate headquarters and international offices. Each office shares certain (but not all) company systems, specializes in different aspects of trading and currency analytics, and provides unique support to the organization. Company leadership recognized the difficulties in creating a corporate policy and business continuity strategies when also considering the unique risks, threats, and response provisions for significant business disruptions among its international facilities. The company secured ReadyGlobal™ to construct a comprehensive set of policies, plans, and procedures to address these Business Continuity needs.

Solution

ReadyGlobal's team of Business Continuity experts collected and reviewed the company's existing documents for preventing and responding to threats that could adversely affect its operations. ReadyGlobal™ recommended the creation of a full Business Continuity Management System that included a Corporate Policy and Business Continuity Plan, Instructions for Loss of Enterprise-wide Systems and Services, and streamlined Location-Specific Emergency Response Plans for each of its international offices. Once accepted, ReadyGlobal™ developed and delivered the completed documents to the company's executive team.

“The hierarchical Business Continuity strategy created by ReadyGlobal exceeded our expectations and greatly simplifies our document review and revision process moving forward -- by segregating corporate, enterprise-wide, and unique support facility guidance into separate, concise documents.”
